Dear Professor Brennan,

Your letter of August 4th honors me greatly. Yes, of course you have my permission to include my letter to you in your forthcoming book.

I have so appreciated your book on morals. It is temporarily out of my personal library - on loan to my oldest son at his request. He, at 26, has just moved to Columbus Georgia where he will teach in the Brookstone School next year. He is working some of your material into his curriculum. ~~material.~~

I so hope that at some time in this busy life we'll have an opportunity to talk.

My second son is a senior at Colorado College, Colorado Springs. A philosophy professor there, Glen Gray (sp?) wrote an interesting book about his experiences as a WWII soldier, titled "The Warriors". I have enjoyed talking to him during my visits there.

I have two younger sons at South Kent school in Conn.

Your daughter will undoubtedly sooner or later be in Washington. Tell her to come in and see the old guy in the Plans and Policy division of the CBO's office. I'm the one with the biggest pile of papers on his desk.

I'll tell the bookstore to be on the lookout for your next Scribners publication. I would appreciate having the title when you have decided upon it.

Sincerely,

James B. Stubbins
