

Library, Navy Department,
Washington, July 17, 1885.

Commodore S.B.Luce, U.S.N.,
President Naval War College,
Newport, R.I.,

My dear Commodore,

I enclose herewith a list of books on International Law which will I think fall well inside of $500. If you feel any doubt about it you can limit the foreign order to say £90; then ^{Stevens} ~~he~~ will send you what he can for the money.

There are two lists, one American and one foreign, the latter marked "Steven's' list". Stevens will be much the best man to furnish them, and will do it as cheaply and as promptly as any one.

I have sent duplicate copies of the lists to be retained by you, so as to save the necessity of making another copy.

I think it extremely important if you can afford it, to have a set of decisions of the Supreme Court of the U.S. They can be bought of Messrs. Banks & Brothers, 144 Nassau St., for $240.

Very truly yours,

J.R. Soley,

①
Soley. J. R.
Professor. U. S. U.

17 July 1885.

Library Books.