HISTORICAL STUDIES AND PRESENTATIONS

Senior Class, 1929

DEPARTMENT OF INTELLIGENCE

Naval War College
Newport, R.I.
August, 1928.

Senior Class, 1929.

It is an accepted fact that, in the ordinary affairs of life, we base our actions - consciously or unconsciously - on experience. If we have none of our own, we use that of others. History is the record of the experience of others. To no other group is a knowledge of history more valuable than to those who follow the profession of arms.

The motive of these historical studies is to acquire familiarity with naval history.

By means of the studies allotted to the individual student officers, the individual acquires a knowledge of and an interest in his own designated subject. By means of the presentations of the several subjects, before the assembled classes, the entire student body, including the junior class, acquires a knowledge of and interest in all of the subjects. Such an outcome could not otherwise be achieved without a vast amount of individual effort and research, time for which the brief College year does not provide.

The individual subjects, numbered 1,2,3,4, etc., are to be found on an attached sheet. On another attached sheet will be found a list of the officers composing the Senior Class, and opposite each name will be found a number, corresponding to an assigned subject. During the period 22 August - 10 October, inclusive, each student officer will study the subject corresponding to the number opposite his name and by 10 October will submit to the Head of the Department of Intelligence his own narrative of the historical events included in that subject.

It will be noted that the same subject has been assigned to more than one student officer. Prior to the beginning of the second historical study period, 3 January - 15 February, inclusive, there will be placed in the hands of each of the 12 senior line officers the narratives of the other officers who have written on the same subject. Thenceforth, the officers of the group who have written narratives on Subject No. 1 will be known as Committee No. 1 and the senior officer will become the Chairman. The same will apply to the other groups and subjects.

The period 3 January - 15 February (afternoons) has been set aside for the purpose of consolidating the several narratives under each subject into a single narrative, preparing slides for the illustration of such narratives, holding rehearsals of the presentations, and, if possible, holding the presentations. In any event, the presentations will begin not later than 15 February, and will continue, at convenient times to be designated later, until all have been given. Further information concerning the presentations will be promulgated prior to 3 January.

Referring now to the individual narratives, each student officer will prepare his narrative as if it were to be presented in the lecture room, by himself, as an illustrated study. In the presentations there should always be a slide before the audience and the text should be written with this in view. Reproductions of photographs, paintings, and prints, caricatures and cartoons, diagrams, and maps of areas and localities will provide material for the slides. Where a more suitable slide cannot be found, the map of the area should be thrown on. The partial bibliographies furnished herewith, coupled with further research in the library, will, it is believed, provide the basis for the necessary illustrations plus additional diagrams and maps which the draftsmen will draw on data furnished by the Committees.

No slides will actually be made to illustrate the individual narratives. Instead, these (individual) narratives will indicate, in their proper places, the slides that would be thrown on if the individual were making the presentation himself, and will also indicate where the material for the slide is to be found. This will later greatly assist the Committee in preparing the consolidated narrative. To indicate the form of the individual narrative (which will later be followed in the Committee narrative), the following sample is appended: -

"From the beginning the South had appreciated the necessity of securing possession of the Sounds of North Carolina and defending their approaches against our gunboats. There is in this region a network of channels communicating with the Chowan, Neuse, and Roanoke Rivers by which stores and munitions of war could be sent in by blockade runners.

The main channel for entering the sound was Hatteras Inlet and here had been thrown up heavy earthworks to protect the most important smuggling route then in operation.

For the purpose of capturing the defenses of Hatteras Inlet a squadron was fitted out, under the command of Commodore Stringham.

Show Slide No. 3 - Portrait of Stringham (to be found in Porter, page 46).

His squadron consisted of 7 vessels and was accompanied by 3 transports carrying 900 troops.

On the 27th of August, 1861, the squadron anchored off Hatteras Island, on the extreme southwestern point of which were Forts Hatteras and Clark, separated by a shallow bay, half a mile wide. Of these works, Fort Hatteras was the larger, and together they mounted 25 guns. Part of the troops landed on the island under cover of the guns of the squadron, and at 8:45 on the morning of the 28th, the battle commenced".

Etc, Etc..

Slides should not be inserted with too great rapidity. In the above sample, the action is purposely rather rapid and would be conveniently slowed by the omission of the portrait of Commodore Stringham and its insertion at a later stage, or, preferably, by the insertion of additional information concerning the Commodore and his squadron. This is a matter which the Committee readily can decide. In the individual narratives, too many, rather than too few, illustrations will be of the greatest benefit to the Committee.

With reference to the length of the narrative, the outside limit of time available for presentation is 2 hours, exclusive of a 10 minute recess. Narratives of lesser length will be entirely acceptable, provided the subject is covered. It has been found that presentations require about 1-1/2 minutes per page of 8 x 13 double spaced typewritten matter including data of slides.

The narratives should always include the background, political and military, as well as the plan and object where a campaign or an operation is involved. Details of land operations are not required, but mention of such operations should be made whenever necessary to a better understanding of the assigned subject. The treatment of the subject should be relieved by anecdotes, humorous incidents, and a description of intense moments whenever practicable. Tabulated matter such as comparative strengths in personnel, guns, and vessels, is not suitable material for slides. While such information may form an essential part of the text, it not only does not "hold" the audience when thrown upon the screen, but actually confuses the listener who is compelled to try to read and listen at the same time.

The MSS submitted should be in such shape as readily to permit the Secretariat to produce smooth copy. It is not required that student officers type their narratives, but typed MSS is preferred, for the sake of legibility. In any event, the final copying and binding will be done by the Secretariat.
